Improving Booth Presentation and Protection with LayerLOCK

EDTC

BAXT LAYERLOCK

Maintaining older spray booths can present ongoing challenges, particularly when it comes to keeping surfaces protected and presentable over time. In this case, the decision to move to LayerLOCK was driven by a practical issue many paintshops will recognise.

The customer explained that their booths were ageing, and previous booth protection products had struggled to adhere properly. Inconsistent adhesion not only reduced the lifespan of the protection but also undermined the overall appearance of the booth, leading to more frequent maintenance and less consistent working conditions.

Since switching to LayerLOCK, the most immediate and noticeable change has been the appearance of the booths themselves. The customer noted that it has significantly “smartened them up”, creating a cleaner and more professional working environment. For older booths in particular, this visual improvement can make a real difference, helping extend the usable life of existing infrastructure without major refurbishment.

From a performance perspective, LayerLOCK has delivered consistent results. The customer reported that it has “done the job 100% of the time”, highlighting reliable adhesion and dependable protection in day to day use. This level of consistency is especially important in busy paintshop environments, where products need to perform without requiring constant attention or reapplication.

Ease and speed of use were also key factors in the overall experience. The customer described LayerLOCK as “very easy and quick” to apply, reducing downtime and making it straightforward for operators to maintain booth conditions as part of routine processes rather than a disruptive task.

Based on their experience, the customer confirmed that they would recommend LayerLOCK to others. The combination of reliable performance, improved booth appearance, and simple application made it a practical and effective solution, particularly for facilities working with older spray booths where adhesion has previously been an iss
